IEDC, like the general public, is concerned about the growing spread of the coronavirus internationally and the impact it will have here in the U.S. For those of us in the Economic Development industry, there are additional issues that we need to consider and to be prepared for. IEDC is committed to sharing vital information and updates with our community through a variety of channels. Here is how you can access these resources.

There is a coronavirus resource page on our website with various links that are updated continually. While we are working to keep the information in these areas as up to date as possible, please check the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention and World Health Organization websites for more detailed information.

As the impact of the coronavirus evolves, you can count on IEDC to continue to share information and updates as well as how it impacts our community. And in the immediate term, IEDC has encouraged attendees at our meetings as well as staff to practice good health habits.

In keeping with processes followed by the American Society of Association Executives (ASAE), of which IEDC is a member, we will not be cancelling any of our upcoming events or training courses at this time. All refund, substitution, cancellation and postponement policies remain in place for your benefit.

We all hope healthcare professionals will find a way to end this epidemic so we can embrace a much more positive outlook for the longer term.

If you have any questions or would like to share what your own organization is doing to manage the situation, please contact us at reception@iedconline.org.
